

When we made the incredibly difficult decision to close the hotel at the onset of COVID-19 back in March, we did so out of precaution for the safety of our staff and guests. Since then, we have watched the pandemic progress and so we have decided to press pause on our re-opening plans until 2021. We did not see a path that would guarantee the well-being of all while still providing the level of service that we have come to be known for.

During our closure, Washington, DC has seen many changes. In late spring, the city welcomed the addition of Black Lives Matter Plaza, located near the White House. Throughout the summer, this plaza was the focal point of a powerful civil movement. Today, this block has evolved over the course of many months to become a place for peaceful gatherings and celebration. The Jefferson, DC has and always will condemn racism in any form, and we will continue to stand behind those who peacefully protest injustice.

At the property we have been busy with the development of best practices to ensure your safety and the safety of our staff, including increasing our mobile capabilities, cleanliness standards and social distancing protocols. For more detailed information on our COVID-19 response, I encourage you to visit our website. The path towards re-opening has not been an easy one, but we have always had one goal in mind - to become your preferred home away from home when visiting Washington, DC and we look forward to welcoming you "home" in the spring of 2021.

If you have any questions regarding a reservation, please continue to reach us by phone at 202.448.2300 or email information@jeffersondc.com. If you are working with a member of our team on an upcoming event, you may continue to contact them directly.

We thank you for your understanding and continued support through this time. We wish everyone a safe and happy festive season with loved ones and we look forward to seeing you soon!

Sincerely,

David Bueno
